Rhode Island Infrastructure Bank Overview

Rhode Island Infrastructure Bank is the centralized hub of local infrastructure project lending in the State. The Bank manages programs that finance infrastructure projects in the areas of clean water, drinking water, municipal road and bridge, energy efficiency and renewable energy, brownfield remediation, and stormwater and climate resiliency. The Bank actively supports and finances infrastructure investment through the origination of loans and mobilization of sources of public and private capital. Projects financed through the Bank serve to help build and maintain a strong system of infrastructure which boosts economic output in both the short- and long-term while enhancing the State’s environment.

The following are the programs currently in place:

- Brownfield Revolving Loan Fund (BRLF)
- Clean Water State Revolving Fund (CWSRF)
- Drinking Water State Revolving Fund (DWSRF)
- Efficient Buildings Fund (EBF)
- Clean Energy Fund (CEF)
- Municipal Resilience Program (MRP)
- Municipal Road and Bridge Revolving Fund (MRBRF)
- Commercial Property Assessed Clean Energy (C-PACE)
- Rhode Island Water Pollution Control Revolving Fund
- Stormwater Project Accelerator (SPA)
- Water Quality Protection Charge Fund
- Resilient Rhody Infrastructure Fund (RRIF)
- Municipal Infrastructure Grant Program (MIGP)
- Rhode Island’s Sewer Overflow and Stormwater Reuse Program (OSG)
- Community Project Assistance Fund (CPAF)
- Energy Efficiency Revolving Loan Fund (EERLF)

Background

The Bank was established in 1989 as a quasi-public agency and is a component unit of the State of Rhode Island. Over its three decades of existence, the Bank’s core mission has evolved and expanded. Consistent with the Bank’s mission of serving as Rhode Island’s central hub for financing infrastructure improvements for municipalities, businesses, and homeowners, the organization is focused on delivering innovative financing for an array of infrastructure-based projects

In addition to the Bank’s legacy drinking water, clean water (and its companion residential-based lending for the community septic system loan program and the sewer tie-in loan fund), and municipal road and bridge programs, the Bank also supports clean energy, climate resiliency, stormwater management, brownfield remediation and water quality protection lending. Please see the Bank’s website for additional information about the Bank (www.riib.org)

To administer these programs, the Bank works with a variety of external partners: state agencies (including the Department of Environmental Management, Health, Transportation, Energy Resources, and Commerce), cities and towns, banks and other quasi-state agencies. Many of the Bank’s programs are federally funded, which require a working relationship with governmental agencies such as the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (“EPA”).

The EPA works closely with the Bank, to assist small systems, which are water systems or wastewater systems that regularly serve fewer than 10,000 people, with financial and technical resources to sustainably provide safe drinking water and ensure clean water infrastructure. One metric for determining such assistance is customer income levels which is measured by conducting income surveys for small water systems who apply for financing through the Drinking Water State Revolving Loan Fund and Clean Water State Revolving Fund administered by the Bank. By doing so, EPA and the Bank may gauge the degree to which a system requires additional subsidies such as grants and principal forgiveness loans.
